

MEXICAN AMBASSADOR IS MUCH IN DARK GOVERNOR TRANSFERS PET BILL TO HOUSE

De La Barra Says that President Taft Promised Not to Intervene, But that It Now Appears that No Understanding Exists.

NOW DOUBTS HIS SINCERITY

Declares That President Must Have Been Misled by Financiers Who Are Interested in Settlement of Revolution—United States Announces That Time For Employment of Drastic Measures to Prevent Filibustering Has Arrived.

New York, March 11.—The Press this morning prints the following from its Washington correspondent: "It would appear that there is no understanding between the United States and Mexican governments respecting the troops on the border. Señor de la Barra seems to be thoroughly in earnest in his statement that the president officially informed him that the mobilization of soldiers had not even a remote relation to the internal troubles of Mexico. "It was a surprise, therefore, for the Mexican ambassador to learn through the state department that the soldiers were being rushed to the Mexican border for the ultimate purpose of interference when the president should be convinced that conditions called for United States troops south of the Rio Grande. He said the president has evidently been deceived by financiers who want intervention."

TO BLOCK FILIBUSTERS

Government Believes Extreme Measures Now Necessary.

Washington, March 11.—Proceeding northward along the Mexican coast, the cruiser Tacoma is headed for Puerto Mexico, which is the gulf terminal of the Tehuantepec railroad, owned by British interests. From Puerto Mexico, the Tacoma will proceed to Galveston, where the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet is to assemble for participation in the joint war game. The cruiser Chester is now on her way from Pensacola to Tampico, Mexico. It was learned, however, that she will touch at several ports along the Mexican gulf coast, such as Tuxpan and Vera Cruz. The sudden movement of these two cruisers to Mexican waters, one northward and the other southward bound, makes it apparent that they have been assigned to patrol duty on the gulf coast of Mexico. The orders to these vessels fits in with the sudden determination on the part of this government to put itself in a position to protect American and other foreign properties in Mexico and to end filibustering.

It was learned that the movement of troops to the Mexican border is indicative of a new policy adopted by the state department in dealing with the question of the introduction from American territory of contraband of war into the republics to the south. State department officials are inclined to the belief that the abolition of this practice is necessary if the peace and security of the Central American governments is to be preserved. It was this view of the practice which led the United States to take drastic though delayed action in the case of the Hornet, which was fitted out at an American port and which later appeared as a gunboat in the Honduran revolution.

Policy Constantly Developing. The policy of this government under the present administration has been constantly developing into the view that the geographical position of the United States, its investments and the responsibilities due to the Monroe doctrine, make it increasingly impossible for this government to stand by passively and see the republics of Central America torn by revolutionary uprisings. It is this general policy that is now being exemplified in the vigorous action which President Taft and his advisers have taken in regard to the Mexican situation.

The Mexican embassy issued another statement in which the interesting announcement is made that

MEXICAN AMBASSADOR

De La Barra Casts Doubt on President's Sincerity.

Mexico never has and never will entertain an idea of permitting foreign troops to enter her territory.

Referring to sensational efforts that have been made to drag Japan into the present Mexican situation, Baron Uchida, Japanese ambassador, said:

"Japan has never made the slightest effort to obtain from Mexico any concession for a coaling station for naval uses at Magdalena bay or All Saints bay, or indeed at any point on the Pacific coast of Mexico."

This statement by the ambassador was in response to published reports that Japan, through secret negotiations with the Diaz government, had either acquired or was about to acquire a coaling station or naval base on this side of the Pacific.

Scene of Activity Changes.

With all the details for the great movement of troops southward completed, the scene of activity has shifted from Washington to the headquarters of the division at San Antonio. Major General William H. Carter, commander of the division, arrived at the Texas post today.

Announcement was made that all of the soldiers at San Antonio who have not already been inoculated with typhoid vaccine will be subjected to the treatment at the beginning of the maneuvers.

The war department continued to receive favorable reports of the movement of troops toward San Antonio. It is believed that most of them will be at the encampment by this evening.

REBELS ON DEFENSIVE

Heavy Losses Reported in Fight at Casas Grandes.

El Paso, Tex., March 11.—The battle at San Augustine ranch, opposite Fabians, Tex., 25 miles east of El Paso, continues to rage, the remnants of the insurgents, at last reports, standing their ground inside an old mill, surrounded by federals. Twenty-one of the insurgents came to the Texas side and were taken prisoner by the United States troops on the Texas side of the border. The United States troops captured 22 Mader rifles and three horses.

The report that Madero's force rallied and defeated the federals at Casas Grandes after being defeated by the federals is not confirmed, but it is known that the insurgents did rally and give further battle. The loss in killed and wounded on both sides is placed at from 300 upwards. Women and children were killed as the fighting took place in the town proper.

Private Herds Will Prevent the Buffalo From Becoming Extinct

FEARS that the American bison, popularly known as the buffalo, will become extinct seem to be unfounded, though the splendid animals will never again exist in herds of thousands as they did forty or fifty years ago. The destruction of these herds, destruction wrought by men who killed by the thousands for the few dollars they got for the hides, is a shame to the government, a shame that would hardly be permitted in these days of conservation. Even the most elementary methods of game protection would have saved the buffalo, for they are hardy animals, able to protect themselves against most enemies and entirely able to withstand the most rigorous weather conditions. There is a large herd of bison in Yellowstone National park, protected by the government and existing under practically natural conditions. The New York zoological park has a herd of fifty or sixty splendid animals, and they are breeding satisfactorily in captivity. There are several small herds on western ranches, and efforts to cross them with cattle have been tolerably successful, the hybrid being called the "cattalo" and having characteristics of both its parents. These cattalo in turn breed so that animals of various mixtures are obtained. The pictures printed above were made at the ranch owned by Major Gordon W. Lillie, better known as "Pawnee Bill." His ranch, located near Pawnee, Okla., is the home of a considerable herd of buffalo, which have been domesticated and are treated the same as cattle. They retain their physical characteristics, as the photograph shows, but they are comparatively tame.

PRESIDENT PRAISES THE LATE CONGRESS

Says It Accomplished Great Results. Does Not Expect Extra Session to Take Up Any Important Work, Except the Canadian Reciprocity Bill.

FELL DOWN ON TWO MEASURES

Failure to Pass Canadian Reciprocity Pact and Provide For Permanent Tariff Board Were Bitter Disappointments, but Is Positive Special Session Will Do Right Thing in Canadian Matter—Tells Southerners That They Are Prosperous.

Atlanta, Ga., March 11.—That he does not expect the Sixty-second congress at the special session which is to meet April 4 to take up any important legislation except the Canadian reciprocity agreement, was made clear by President Taft in his speech before the Southern Commercial congress here. He believes that a majority of the new congress will favor reciprocity and he thinks that it will be passed regardless of party lines.

If the special session of the Sixty-second congress attempts to undertake a general revision of the tariff, or if it tries to revise schedules of the Payne-Aldrich law without sufficient scientific data, the president most likely will exercise his power of veto. This much came from friends of Mr. Taft. If an attempt is made to saddle a revision of the tariff or a revision of a few important schedules like the cotton and woolen schedules on the Canadian agreement bill, the president would have the same inclination to register executive disapproval.

May Not Use Veto.

There is reason to believe that the president has been assured that he will not be compelled to make use of the veto. It was asserted here by friends of the administration that the president has been assured by Democratic leaders that no effort to tinker with the tariff will be made at the special session, but that the Canadian agreement will be taken up promptly and disposed of, and that then, possibly other less important matters will be put through.

The president spoke to more than 5,000 people. With him on the platform were the governors of more than a dozen states, Secretary of War Dickinson, Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and George Westinghouse, who also made addresses.

A part of the president's speech dealt with the south; what her property was, and what it meant to the rest of the nation, but much of it was devoted to a review of what the Sixty-first congress, and particularly the last half of that congress, had accomplished.

Best Since War.

"The Sixty-first congress just closed," said the president, "has enacted more useful and progressive legislation in its three sessions than any congress since the war."

The most important work of the session the president said, was the ratification of the commerce and navigation treaty with Japan. The most dismal failure recorded against it was that of the Canadian reciprocity bill in the senate.

The president's roll of honor of the last session's achievements included the act changing judicial procedure and abolishing the circuit courts; the safety appliances act for the protection of railway employees; the law increasing the number of officers of the army; the two battle-ship provision in the naval law; the fortification of the Panama canal.

The great disappointment of the session, the president said, was the failure of the bill to create a permanent tariff commission. He told, however, of his having increased the membership of the present board, for which he did get an appropriation.

MIDWINTER FAIR PLANNED

Sandies at Work on New Agricultural Exhibition.

Columbus, O., March 11.—A. P. Sandies, secretary of the state board of agriculture, will be at the head of a big midwinter poultry, grain and fruit show to be held at the state fair grounds next winter. The state board has given him permission to go ahead with preparations for the show.

The state fair will again have night exhibits next summer. The board set aside $1,000 to enlarge the children's department. Applications for increases in the swine and sheep department were rejected because of the board's financial condition caused by the poor attendance last year.

RESEMBLES STOCKWELL'S BILL

Candidates For United States Senator Must Have Petition Signed by 2 Per Cent of Voters of State, Not More Than One-Fifth to Be Residents of One County—Candidates For State Senator and Representative Have Choice of Pledges.

Columbus, O., March 11.—Governor Harmon, blocked in the senate by the hostility of six Democratic senators, has turned to the house for aid in carrying out the party pledge for the election of United States senators by popular vote. Representative Wyman of Shelby introduced a bill which differs somewhat from that which Senator Stockwell and Governor Harmon have fought for in vain for two months, but which conforms in all essentials to the Oregon senatorial primary law.

For the entry of a candidate for senator in the party primary there is required a petition signed by 2 per cent of the electors of the state, not more than one-fifth of the signers to live in one county.

Name Under Governors.

The winner at the primaries will have his name placed on the November ballot, just under the name of the party candidate for governor.

Each candidate for state senator and member of the house may sign either of two statements. One pledges him to vote for the candidate who has the highest vote at the November election, regardless of party. The second statement is a declaration that he will consider the vote of the people on senator only a recommendation and will not feel bound to abide by it.

Claim Seed Corn Is Worthless

Farmers in Portions of Ohio Face Serious Problem.

Columbus, O., March 11.—Ohio corn growers have a serious time getting seed corn which will grow, according to many reports which have come to Secretary A. P. Sandies of the state board of agriculture. The reports have come from many parts of the state and it is declared that weather conditions of last fall are responsible. Examination of ears of corn at the experiment station at Wooster and by students in the agriculture college at Ohio State university have revealed the fact that there is a large percentage of grains that will not grow at all, and many other ears part of which will be useless for seed.

Too Anxious to Die.

Zanesville, O., March 11.—In a fit of despondency, Lottie Willis, 25, took seven and a half grains of mercury, in an attempt at suicide, but failed through the excessive size of the dose.

Says He Had Heavenly Tip.

Findlay, O., March 11.—Following the command of a decree from heaven, upward of 30 persons will leave this city within the next few days for Los Angeles, Cal., there to seek a promised land and bathe in the waters of a sacred streamlet. One woman sold a large farm to help finance the trip. Several of the members sold their homes in this city and one and all have disposed of their household and personal belongings. The leader claims to have received a tip from heaven that all who bathe in the stream will be happy forever after.

For the Present at Least Company M Remains Here

Expected Orders to Go to the Mexican Frontier Did Not Materialize, and the Boys Have Put Aside Their Soldier Clothes and Settled Down to the Humdrum Routine of the Pursuits of Peace Once More.

Ninety Men Only from Ohio Guard will be Taken by the Government to the Front—These Men Selected by Lot. Major Florence, of Circleville, Among the Fortunate Ones in the Drawing.

MAJOR ALLEN DRAWS BLANK

For the present at least Company M—the local company—of the 4th Regiment, Ohio National Guard, will have no representative at the front on the Mexican border.

For a time it was believed that the entire 4th regiment would be called upon with the 7th Regiment and Battery C to go to the front, and as a consequence there was much activity to be noted about the armory in this city.

On Thursday night the boys were very much in evidence with their "soldier clothes" and marching paraphernalia lacking only orders. The latter they were expecting almost any minute. Much disappointment in the failure to receive marching orders was manifested on every side.

Friday Adjutant General Weybrecht received orders to select ninety men from the Ohio National Guard to be sent to the front.

The selection of these men was made by lot. Those were regarded as the lucky ones who drew a card with "go" written on it and those who drew a blank card were regarded as unlucky. Of the Fourth Regiment the following are the lucky ones:

Colonel Byron L. Bargar, Columbus; Major George Florence, Circleville; Captains Robert Lindenberg, Columbus; Frank L. Oyler, Company B, Columbus; John T. Snitzler, Company E, Marysville; James A. Sampson, Company K, Delaware.

Major Rell G. Allen was at headquarters in Columbus, anxious to go to the front and drew a blank from the hat on the first drawing.

Major Florence of Circleville, drew a "go" card. As soon as the drawing was concluded it was discovered that a mistake had been made in placing too many cards in the hat and it was all to do over again. But on the second trial also Major Florence was smiled on by fickle fortune and he drew a card with the one word "go" written on it, while Major Allen again drew a blank. There is in consequence jubilation in Circleville, while Major Allen returned from Columbus last evening looking as glum as an ostrich.

The affairs around the armory, since it has become known that the company for the present at least, has no prospect of "going", have settled down. The soldiers' clothes have been changed for garbs of peace and business, and an atmosphere of quiet prevails in lieu of the excitement and expectancy of Wednesday and Thursday.

THE COMING JUBILEE.

A great union meeting of all the Protestant church people of Fayette county will be held on Wednesday, March 15, in Grace M. E. Church. While this is to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the organization of the Woman's Union Missionary Society, it is primarily to acquaint and interest those of our women who are not yet interested in Foreign Missions.

These Jubilee meetings have been held all over the country with most gratifying results. One very striking feature of the meetings wherever held, is the close union and working in sympathetic harmony of all the religious denominations. They are here banded together, and working for the one great end—the spread of missions, both in our hearts and on the field.

Will YOU help, by your presence, make this Jubilee a success?

Freshmen Bazaar For Class Picture

Each year the Freshmen of the Washington C. H. High school, purchase a picture to add to the collection started by the Freshmen some years ago.

Only good pictures are bought and the collection, which makes good showing hung in High school corridor and in the stairway, is a promising beginning for what is hoped will be a choice little art gallery some day. The collection includes "The Captive Andromache", "Napoleon in Egypt", "The Pilgrims Going to Church", "Sir Gallahad", "The End of the Day", "The Coliseum", "The Parthenon", "The Chariot Race" and "Persepolis".

There is keen rivalry in each class to out-do the previous classes and the Freshman's Candy Bazaar was inaugurated to make the money for these purchases.

The class of 1915 held their Bazaar the past two days at the High school building. It was very successful, netting between $35.00 and $40.00, which will be put into the best picture that the sum will buy.

The members of the class make their own selection with suggestions from those older and more cultured in art study. An inspection of these pictures is flattering to the judgment of the classes in their selections.

Mallow Adds New Trotter To Stable

Wert Mallow has returned from Indianapolis, Ind., where he purchased in the John Mackey sale, a promising young green trotter, Bonnie Dotte, by Burna Dotte and Bonnie McGregor, to add to his stable on Fayette street.

Mr. Mallow's latest purchase is considered a find and pronounced by experts one of the best that went through the sale. He paid a fancy price for her and has already refused profitable offers. He expects to try her out over the half mile and mile track and bough her intending to race her and as well as have a stable companion for Major Mallow.

The Mallow stable now includes Major Mallow, looking better than ever and in fine condition for the season's campaign; the three-year-old filly by Bay Wreath, and a couple of record horses, Charley 2:15½, by Wilksview; C. O. R., 2:18½, by G. W. D.

National Shortightedness.

"In this country," said the sociologist, "everything possible is done to discourage people from marrying."

"How so?" inquired one of the listeners.

"You have to buy the marriage license, for the preacher, the boys give you what they call a 'shivaree'; your friends throw old shoes at you, the newspapers print caricatures of you, life insurance agents bound you, you bump right up against the cost of living, and if you find you've made a mistake you have to go to no end of trouble to get a divorce."—Chicago Tribune.

McCoy And Pavey "Guilty" Rowe "Not Guilty"

Was the Verdict of the Jury in the Assault and Battery Case, Returned Last Evening at 6:30 o'Clock.

After deliberating about four hours, the jury in the case of the State of Ohio vs. Cornelius McCoy, Junius Pavey and Frank Rowe, the defendants being indicted for assault and battery, Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock, returned a verdict of guilty against Cornelius McCoy and Junius Pavey and not guilty as to Frank Rowe.

Friday afternoon at one o'clock the jury was reassembled, having been excused until that time by the court, pending the argument of the special charges asked for by both sides.

After determining just which ones of the charges asked for he would give, Judge Carpenter delivered the special charges to the jury.

Both the attorneys for the State, Pope Gregg and John Logan, and for the defendants, J. D. Post, announced that the case might be submitted to the jury without argument.

Judge Carpenter then delivered the general charge and the case went to the jury at 2:30 o'clock, the verdict being returned at 6:30 o'clock.

The convicted defendants will file motions for new trial within the three-day limit, it is understood, and if over-ruled, prosecute error to the Circuit court, which convenes here on May the ninth.

John D. Archbold is sixty-two years old and because the Standard Oil building elevators balked the other day walked to the thirteenth floor. So did Henry M. Flagler, aged eighty. "If we could do that every day," said Mr. Archbold, "our surplus flesh would soon disappear."

More recently his studies have been confined to the improvement of combustion engines, in which field lies the successful future of airships.

BUSY MAN AND WIFE

A Very Modern Domestic Raiser in One Gasp.

Scene—A pretty little breakfast room in the home of Mr. John Blank, the "Busy Man." Mr. Blank is seen engrossed in the stock news in the morning paper, while Mrs. Blank is charming in a pale blue negligee and sips her coffee with an "I've made up my mind" air.

His Wife—John, will you do me a favor?

The Busy Man (without looking up from his paper)—Yes, my dear. What is it?

His Wife (nervously)—Well, I—er—

Busy Man (impatiently)—Hurry, my dear. What is it?

His Wife—I have a confession to make, John.

Busy Man—Don't bother, confessions take up so much valuable time.

His Wife (wistfully)—I don't love you any more.

Busy Man continues reading his paper.

His Wife (angrily)—Didn't you hear what I said?

Busy Man (apparently annoyed at the interruption)—Yes, that's all right; that's all right. Don't worry.

His Wife (decidedly)—But I want you to get a divorce from me!

Busy Man (exasperated)—Isn't that just like a woman! Now, you know, Helen, that I can't take the time from my business for anything so frivolous. Returns to paper.

His Wife (leaning forward)—But, John, I love some one else. You—

Busy Man (without glancing up)—Of course, of course. (To himself) Sugar has gone up again.

His Wife (sitting up very straight)—And, John Blank, I am going to run away with him!

Busy Man (rising and pushing his chair back)—Please yourself, my dear, only don't expect me to see you off or attend to any of the little details of your departure, because just now I am so busy—haven't a minute—must rush to the office now. (Turning at the door) Shall I see you again?

His Wife (helpless and tearful)—Well, if that's the way you are going to act, John Blank, I shall stay right here. You've just spoiled it all!

Exit John. Curtain.—L. R. S. Henderson in Life.

The Wrong Scent.

A prominent citizen of Washington was traveling over a line of railway with which he was unfamiliar. At a certain point the road passes a fertilizer factory, the odor from which is offensive. It is particularly disagreeable to a lady who is compelled to make the journey daily. As a protection from the obnoxious atmosphere she is accustomed to carry a bottle of lavender salts. As the train approached the factory she produced the phial as usual, unstopped it and applied it to her nostrils. Presently the odors from the factory began to permeate the car. The Washington man endured it as long as he felt that he could. At last he rose to his feet and, approaching the lady, said in his most polite manner, "Madam, may I request you to replace the stopper in that bottle?"—Youth's Companion.

His Morning's Work.

He—Have you washed the dishes, dear?

She—Yes.

"Made the beds?"

"Sure."

"Fed the birds?"

"All of 'em."

"Given the fish fresh water?"

"All done."

"Swept the stoop?"

"Clean as a whistle. But what have you been doing all morning, John?"

"Me? Oh, I've been waiting all morning for you to come out and help me pump up the automobile tires!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Too Magnetic.

"I'm sorry to have to bring this watch to you for the third time this month," apologized the man with the fur trimmed overcoat, "but it has become magnetized again."

"You ought to take something for your blood," grumbled the watch repairer; "there's too much iron in it!"—Chicago Tribune.

THE HIGH SCHOOL SITE REMAINS UNDETERMINED

City Board of Education Failed Last Night to Arrive at a Final Settlement of the Question Which is Attracting Such Widespread Interest---Subject Taken Up in Earnest, However.

The city School Board met last night according to agreement with Architect Howard, of Columbus, who came down on the afternoon train by appointment.

The matter of the selection of a site for the new High School building was taken up and discussed first informally and then formally for the first time.

Practically the entire evening was devoted to the serious discussion of that question and in going over the plans of the architect, he having submitted two sets one for a building at the "Point" and another for a building on the Central School grounds.

These plans were gone over in detail—comparisons made and practical results which might be obtained—discussed. The question of economy—that of the "long run" type—was also an important matter taken into consideration.

The men who compose the Board of Education are not of the penny-wise type and when economy is discussed in connection with the creation of the new school building, the future is considered as well as the present.

No definite conclusion as to where the new building will be located was reached. At least no formal action of the Board was taken and no conclusion was announced, as having been arrived at by any of the members of the Board.

Mr. Howard left for his home in Columbus on the night train, and if the Board deems it to its advantage he will return again on request and take up the discussion of the site question again.

While the selection of a site was not formally made yet it may be announced that much progress was made toward the long desired end.

The discussion could not fail to help amazingly to clear up the ideas of the members and either strengthen them in their preferences or change their views.

An Overwhelming Charge.

The magistrate looked sternly over his gold rimmed glasses at the funny individual in the dock.

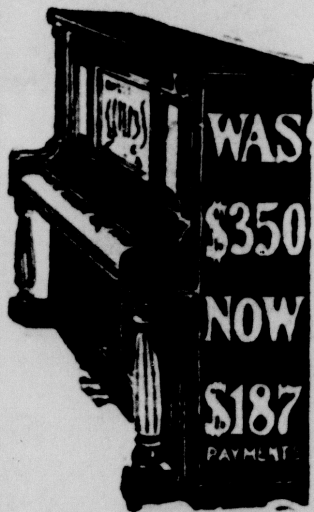

"You are charged," he remarked, reading the formal complaint, "with having wilfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought appropriated to your own use and behoof a certain article—to wit, a one wheeled vehicle, commonly called a wheelbarrow—the said article having been wrongfully and feloniously abstracted by you from the premises of one John Smith, carpenter, on the 18th day of September, anno Domini, contrary to the statute in such cases made and provided and against the peace and dignity of this great realm. What have you to say? Are you guilty or not guilty?"

The prisoner's face assumed a pea green hue, his knees trembled and he stammered forth:

"Not guilty, your honor. All I done was to steal a barrow!"—Tit-Bits.

In Social Circles

The society columns of Friday evening's Columbus Dispatch announces the marriage of Miss Leah Clark, daughter of Mrs. Lang McGhee, of this city, and Mr. Nathan K. Snook, of Neil avenue, on Wednesday, March the eighth. The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Graham, 2216 Sullivan avenue.

When the bride resigned her position with the Midland Bank and left for her new home in Columbus last Monday, Dame Rumor hinted at the part that Cupid was to play in the arrangements, so the marriage is hardly a surprise in Washington circles.

The bride is a charming young woman, who will have the best of wishes of a host of friends here and at her former home in Springfield.

The bridegroom also is well known and liked in this community, having been bookkeeper with the C. F. Ballard Hardware Co. before going to Columbus to engage in the manufacturing business.

Mr. and Mrs. Snook will reside on the corner of King avenue and Highland street.

DREAM OF FAME IS NOT ALWAYS SPUR
TO BIG ENDEAVORS

Desire for Soul Satisfaction
Overlooked in Greed
For Notoriety.

What rage for fame attends both great and small!
Better be damned than mentioned not at all.

WOVEN into the web of life to-day are two great desires that are the strongest threads in all its motley pattern—the thirst for vast wealth and the hunger for fame. The threads cross and recross until at times it is difficult to tell one from the other, but it is only where success and ambition run together in the weave of work that the golden ring in the thread of fame may really be seen.

When Olive Harper announced the other day that she was ready and willing to sell the manuscript of her new book and let the purchaser have whatever fame and fortune came from it, the world was aghast, and when she added that many of her stories had been sold to society people who published under their own names, through a mad desire to be thought literary, scores of women refused to believe it. Yet, it is true.

For nowadays, when women run side by side with men in the rush for notoriety and money, they want success at any price. The satisfaction that comes from the knowledge that they have done their best is no balm if the limelight of publicity has not attended their activities.

High ideals are thrust aside in the endeavor to do or write something sensational and win the passing attention that goes for fame.

But, after all, is it worth while—his striving only for the applause of the multitude? It cannot bring the warm comfort born of real endeavors of great dreams and honest work.

It cannot win the "well done" of those whose praise is really of value, and once the passing sensation is over the achievement is forgotten and the striver after the limelight sinks back into oblivion.

Good work; no matter how or when it is done, must in time win recognition, while the transitory fame that comes from publishing the work of one one else cannot last, for there is nothing back of it—no power to do more, no chance to reach the public through your own efforts.

And so, after all, to do your best is better than to win a fortune, for it brings happiness, which monetary success cannot.

HOW IT SHOULD BE DONE.

There are probably just as many people who can and will, without being pressed either, tell just how a newspaper should be run as there are to tell how to cure a boil or carbuncle.

The only trouble is that the advice amounts to very little in either case. Principally because in both cases the advisers have no responsibility and generally only a desire to air the knowledge which they desire to create the impression they possess, and to gain an advantage personally.

The words most frequently used by these wiseacres who every time, except possibly one in a million, have an axe of their own to grind, are "Mold, reflect and follow."

If they can succeed in backing a fellow citizen into a position with his back to the wall with all chance of escape cut off and learnedly dilate upon the duty of the newspaper to the public, laying special stress upon the matters it should keep perfectly mum about, weaving into the conversation at certain intervals these chosen words, "mold, reflect and follow" they would not think of changing places with the president.

The "line of talk" can very readily be varied to suit the desires of the lecturer, too.

For instance, if the particular lecturer, has an inoffensive, law-abiding citizen, who has never been fined for assault and battery, cornered, desires to put through some pet scheme that the public does not approve of, then the newspaper should not attempt to "mold" public opinion by publishing all the facts. In such case it should reflect public opinion as the rays are given off by the lecturer. This is should do by publishing only those matters which are given to it by the man who knows just how a newspaper should be run. If he is on the outside of a nice deal then he can expatiate just as learnedly, judged by length and sound of words, on the duties of the newspaper to "mold" public opinion and not sit idly by and permit the people to have a raw tomato put right over the heart of the plate.

It is the easiest thing in the world to run a newspaper when you are not charged with the duty of running one and depending for your meal ticket on whether you can make good or not.

If the lecturer should happen to have an immense amount of valuable time on his hands by reason of having fallen head-first into the very center of a financial feather bed without any special effort of his own, that is only an added qualification, in his opinion, of his ability to tell just how the other fellow should do it.

If perchance any worthy citizen burdened with an over supply of philanthropic motives and notions about newspaper work should be so fortunately situated as not to be compelled to work for his living, he has that much better chance to lay in wait for citizens and deliver himself of some of his ideas.

Suppose one of these wise boys should lose his meal book and be compelled to work for a living, and cruel fate would put him in a newspaper office and cast on his broad shoulders the responsibility of shaping its policy, determining whether it should "mold, reflect or follow", when publishing news, and he had no other interest, no other axe to grind—simply to run the newspaper—how he could turn his ideas into money.

It has always been the wonder of newspaper men everywhere that some of these men who could do it up brown, did not take a shy at the business any way. They certainly believe they have the ability and nearly all of them have access to the money.

Of course it would mean the ever-lasting end of all the newspapers now being published, but think what a benefit it would be to the public to be shown just how a newspaper really should be run right.

When newspaper men think that if the public was once shown they would be compelled to go back and start to learn the business all over again, they are glad that the practical demonstration is omitted but then all real newspaper men are big enough and game enough to stand the loss to benefit the profession and the public.

Anyway, the next time Taft says he'll do a thing, there'll be a whole lot fewer accusing him of bluffing.

It's barely possible the Kentucky Congressman who threatened to throw a brick at "Uncle Joe" had one in his hat.

It is said the only men in Congress who are not worrying about an extra session are baseball fans who can't see the big league clubs at home.

Sylvia Parkhurst, the English suffragette, says American women have a cinch on the ballot—nothing to do but to convince the men they ought to have it.

POETRY FOR TODAY

ON THE OLD ROAD.

Once in an old forgotten day
This by-track was a trodden way.
But now, so few the steps that pass,
The ruts are carpeted with grass.

The careless brambles trail across,
The gravel has its garb of moss,
And oft the dawn and dusk go by
Unnoted of a human eye.

But when the languid day is past
The slumberous road awakes at last,
And many feet resume their way
That long have moldered into clay.

There is no sound of stealthy tread
Along this pathway of the dead—
No rustle of the feet that pass
Deadened by something else than grass.

Gray men who toiled and wrought
Of yore,
Lone weary women burden'd sore,
And little children prattling low—
I catch their chatter as they go;

And here the lover and his maid,
Long since in dismal kirkyard laid;
And mother with her suckling pressed,
Again the comfort of her breast.

They all had passed, their traffic done,
Long centuries ere I saw the sun.
I stand and watch them wondering-ly,
Half thinking that they beckon me—

Mexican Ambassador Is Much in Dark

PRESIDENT DIAZ ALIVE

Capital Reports Executive in Good Health.

Mexico City, March 11.—Reports which are being circulated through the United States to the effect that President Diaz is dead are absolutely untrue. He received the visit of French naval officers at his home Wednesday and later he saw a number of public officials.

The report was telegraphed here that the president's death had been announced in the United States, and it caused great surprise. The health of President Diaz, it can be said, is fair, considering his age and the great worry to which he has been subjected by reason of the revolt.

TROOPS GO UNARMED

Leave Columbus Barracks on Short Notice.

Columbus, O., March 11.—Indications to get all available soldiers of the infantry and cavalry branches to service at the Mexican border, today left the Columbus barracks for San Antonio, Tex. They went without arms and will be equipped on their arrival. Many of those who were not enlisted until this morning. The Columbus barracks is recruiting station, and with the departure of the detachment will still have 500 artillery recruits on hand.

HAVE ALL ARMS NEEDED

Mexican Insurgent Says Taft's Precaution Taken Too Late.

New York, March 11.—Gustavo G. Guerrero, brother of Francisco I. Madero, the revolutionary leader and provisional president in Mexico, made the following statement concerning the massing of troops in Texas after reading the explanation made by the administration:

"The United States has a perfect right to put a wall of troops along its frontier if she wishes, but it will not make any difference to us. We have all the guns and ammunition we want now in Mexico."

OFFICERS IN QUANDRY

Unable to Understand Use of Steel Bullets in Maneuvers.

San Antonio, Tex., March 11.—Why are ball cartridges issued to the men if the present maneuvers were intended as only military play? That is the question on the lips of every officer in camp at Fort Sam Houston. In doing this all precedents for maneuvers have been broken in this country and in Europe. To send out men to engage in sham battles, every one with a full belt of steel-jacketed cartridges, is admitted to be a most peculiar as well as most dangerous operation.

Not only did the soldiers come here with belts full, but there arrived in San Antonio four special baggage cars of ammunition. One of these cars was rushed to the border to supply the troops now stationed there.

Weybrecht Reports Progress.

Columbus, O., March 11.—Adjutant General Weybrecht has wired from Washington that he has furnished the names of 90 officers of the Ohio National Guard to the war department and expects that they will be ordered in about 10 days and ordered to Texas for three weeks' service. Ohio was the first state to accept the government's invitation to send officers to the maneuvers.

Bill Provides For More Judges

House Has Two Bills to Create Ninth Judicial District.

Columbus, O., March 11.—Representative Denson of Montgomery introduced a bill to create a new judicial circuit in Ohio. It provides for the Ninth circuit, to be composed of the counties of Franklin, Clark, Madison, Green, Champaign and Fayette, with provision for the election of three judges in 1912. It leaves in the present Second circuit the counties of Montgomery, Miami, Darke, Preble and Shelby. The new Ninth circuit would be Republican, while the Second would remain Democratic.

Another circuit bill, introduced by Representative Cooper of Mahoning, creates a new Ninth circuit by taking Monroe county out of the Fourth circuit and Columbiana, Carroll, Jefferson, Harrison, Guernsey and Noble counties out of the Seventh circuit.

Convicts To Work Old Stone Quarry

Pen Managers Will Ask Legislature For Funds.

Columbus, O., March 11.—At least a partial solution of the question of the employment of these prisoners in the penitentiary who are becoming idle under the operation of the Wertz law, and for whom the board is making every effort to secure work, has been found by the managers of the institution, if the proper legislation can be secured.

It has been decided to again operate the limestone quarry, consisting of 48 acres, west of Columbus and along the line of the Pennsylvania railroad. This road will lay a switch into the quarry and the prisoners will be transported in that way.

Formerly Operated by State.

The quarry was operated by the state a number of years ago, and from stone taken out the statehouse, state hospital, school for feeble-minded youth and the penitentiary were all constructed. It is estimated that there is still enough stone left to furnish employment for 25 years.

In a report submitted to the board, Warden Jones said:

"An absolute plant can be built for about $10,000. This plant would produce about 800 tons or more of stone daily which could easily be disposed of for 30 cents per ton, making a total of $240 a day. By deducting $1 for each 100 men employed and about $50,000 for running expenses, there would still be $240 daily left to the state. This is a low estimate, and when the plant got running well the profit would be handsomely increased."

The warden was instructed to make arrangements for the proper legislation for the control of the property, for the $50,000 to erect and equip the plant and the right to sell the product in the open market, as well as to secure from the Pennsylvania railroad rates for hauling prisoners to and from the institution.

Ohio Collegians Warm Debaters

Columbus, O., March 11.—Ohio State university debaters triumphed over representatives of Illinois university in a discussion of compulsory arbitration. At Delaware, O., Ohio Wesleyan debaters were victors over Syracuse university in a discussion of the central bank question.

Snowslide Brings Death To Eleven

Nevada Mining Camp Engulfed Without Warning.

Reno, Nev., March 11.—A snowslide racing down the mountain side has swept to death 10 men and one woman, employees of the Hydro-Electric company plant at Jordan, according to telegrams received here.

The slide, which came down upon the camp without warning, first crushed the homes of the company's employees and then partially wrecked the power plant. The houses were crumpled like paper while their occupants slept, and none of the victims had a chance to escape.

What Constitutes a Good Investment

"It is Easier to Earn Money Than to Save It."

How to invest savings, or surplus funds of any kind, is frequently a difficult problem. How to be sure that the principal will be safe; that the interest will be paid promptly; that in case of necessity the investment can readily be converted into cash—all of these points which enter so vitally into the life of a good investment are not always easy of determination. This Bank offers you in its

GOVERNMENT CHECKING UP CITY MAIL ROUTES

"Uncle Sam" Wants to Know Just How Far a City Mail Carrier Travels and What He Delivers Each Day---Purpose Not Now Known---Test Began Monday, Ends Tonight.

12-1

At the local postoffice this week along with the other postoffices in the state, the Government has been obtaining information relative to the carrier routes, the purpose of which is known now only to the Government officials.

The test began on Monday morning and was concluded Saturday evening.

Data was obtained as to each carrier's route. The distance he covered, the number of pieces of mail handled, the weight of the mail matter and the number of pieces of first and second and third class mail handled.

The distance traveled by the carrier was ascertained by attaching a chronometer to a bicycle and having an assistant go along with the carrier over his route and push the wheel.

Blanks were sent on by the postoffice department to be filled out by the postmaster and returned to the department properly filled out.

All over Ohio these bits of information are being gathered up and forwarded to the department, but just what use will be made of the information is not now known.

The department under Postmaster General Hitchcock is making an earnest and business-like effort to ascertain the cause of the enormous annual deficit and it is probable that the information now being gathered is to be used in connection with the work of getting at and removing the trouble.

In Columbus a pedometer was used by the carrier and that instrument was tried here, but discarded, for the ordinary chronometer, it being believed to be much more accurate on routes of cities of this size.

Prisoners Endeavor To Oust Guard

The attempts of the prisoners at the Ohio penitentiary to have Michael Fletcher of Ross county, removed as a guard, which was published in the News-Advertiser last week, has evidently taken on serious and unheard of proportions according to advices from Columbus.

Attorney L. A. Alcott says he has been retained by prisoners at the Ohio pen who are circulating a petition, charging cruelty against guard Mike Fletcher, started it is said by Fletcher striking Vincent Decker, a Franklin county man, who pushed a truck into him.

When Warden Jones first heard of the petition he attempted to have it suppressed and it appears that no one ever saw the petition except the prisoners, although the officials learned that it was being signed.

Fletcher has been considered an excellent guard by Warden Jones, and has had some of the most trying positions at the penitentiary. Being regarded as a man absolutely fearless, he was given positions which no one envied him. Just what weight an attorney for the prisoners will have with the Warden remains to be seen.

Mr. Hewligus—"Not again, Amanda, S.H.H!"

Hetty sells Elgin Watches.

"I am going to take the stump," declared Mr. Merriwell, in a low set voice.

"What stump?" asked Mrs. Merriwell, heedlessly.

"The great stump of American education," said Mr. Merriwell, becoming oratorical. "The nation is rotten to the core. The great common people—"

"—are happy digging ditches, raising corn and dodging automobiles," took up Mrs. Merriwell. "You'd better let them alone."

Mr. Merriwell was set in his purpose. The campaign was in progress. Mr. Merriwell's appointment was for the densely populated eleventh ward. He found waiting him probably a thousand Lithuanians, Czechs, Hungarians, Slavonians and Finns. As soon as he mounted the goods box from which he was to declaim, other hundreds of Greeks, Bohemians, Syrians, Armenians and Turks came rushing up. Mr. Merriwell bowed in his most pleasing manner.

"Pipe de swell guy!" cried a shrill voice in front of him.

Mr. Merriwell smiled benevolently and waved his right hand in an encompassing gesture. "Friends, fellow citizens," he began, in a voice into which he endeavored to put feeling, "I am for the man in harness, the man with the hoe, the man."

There was a roar from the assemblage. "We don't care a ting about yer men with hoes and bridle," cried an auditor. "Are youse for Gas House McConnell? Are youse for Slippery Heel Dineen? What yer tink of de wharf gang?"

Mr. Merriwell did not cease to smile benevolently. He raised his large fat hand, palm outstretched for silence. It was well that he did so. In his early days Mr. Merriwell had been a splendid sand-lot baseball artist. The outstretched hand was just in time to seize and neatly hold a far-flung turnip.

"Good ketch! Out at first!" shouted the crowd.

Mr. Merriwell, in an effort to be funny and carry the crowd, bit into the turnip. Days had passed since it had been a good turnip. He frowned and choked and spat all over a swarthy Sicilian directly beneath him.

"Ah, looka oat! Spitta lika da spreunkler!" spat the outraged one.

Mr. Merriwell, still game, raised both hands and began anew. "The time has come"—he shouted, vigorously, when he was interrupted by a strolling street piano performer. When all good citizens should pause to think—shouted Mr. Merriwell at the top of his thin, treble voice.

"Shing-clang-cling, ting-tang, tee ooh!" chimed the noisy, gaudy piano. The crowd clapped hands in place. A hundred young Americans in the making danced and shouted about the street piano. Someone kicked the box on which Mr. Merriwell stood wildly, jostling him into the crowd he sprawled. By the time Mr. Merriwell reached the car line his face resembled a water-splashed checkered board.

"What is this large, blue spot, dear?" asked Mrs. Merriwell, as she tenderly dressed his wounds.

"I think a Chinaman did it," explained Mr. Merriwell.

"Ah, the brawny hand of labor," murmured Mrs. Merriwell. "And what is this?"

"I believe that was a cabbage," he groaned.

"The fruit of American industry," murmured Mrs. Merriwell. "And what about the country?"

"Let the country go to Tophet!" growled Mr. Merriwell. "Ouch, be easy that's tender!"

HIGHLY GRATIFIED AT RESULTS OF SCHOOL

The Promoters of Fayette County's First Agricultural School Are Well Satisfied Over the Success of Their Efforts, the Attendance at the School and Interest Manifested.

The promoters of Fayette county's first agriculture school are well satisfied over the success of their efforts, considering the lateness of the time encroaching upon the farmer's busy season, the attendance was good and from the standpoint of interest it was a pronounced success.

The instructors in both the Agricultural and the Home-makers' courses expressed themselves gratified over the treatment received and were delighted with the exceptional hotel accommodations of our city.

Prof. Graham, of the O. S. U., who was down Friday, was convinced of the possibilities of a banner school in this county, but said that he would never again consider holding it this late in the year.

An application has already been sent in for next year's school. Jeffersonville would have liked to have had one there.

Friday afternoon's program brought the agricultural course to a close with a practical talk on the use of lime, where land was found to be sour, by Mr. Welton, and Mr. Evans' judging of hogs.

Mr. Ed Weaver brought in two splendid specimens of Hampshire hogs, 11 months old and weighing 215 pounds which were judged. The scoring aroused some controversy as the instructor was judging a strictly hard type of hog and these Hampshire are really a bacon hog and not technically of the hard type.

The fine breeding hog brought in by Mr. R. C. Hunt was not judged.

In regard to attendance the Home-makers course was a greater success than the Agricultural course.

The women became very enthusiastic before the week was over and there is no doubt that another year would mean a very large school.

CREAM SOUP

Food Overlooked by Many In Planning Meals.

BY MABEL MISKIMEN,
Department of Agricultural Extension,
Ohio State University.

Cream of vegetable soup, made of vegetable pulp and thin white sauce is a food that is overlooked by many people in planning meals. If properly made it is very palatable and has high food value on account of the milk that is used in the white sauce. Meat soup is stimulating rather than nutritious except when such food as vegetables, rice or macaroni are added to the meat stock. Cream soup served with crackers or croutons is a well-balanced dish and may form the principal part of a light meal, but should not be served at a heavy meal. Meat soup serves the purpose better as the beginning of the ordinary dinner.

Care should be taken in making cream soup, since milk is the principal ingredient. It must be prepared in a digestible way as possible, that is, cooked below the boiling point of water. This is accomplished by heating milk in a double boiler. A double boiler may be improvised by placing a small pan in a larger one containing boiling water. The heat in the smaller pan will not reach the boiling point. Boiling renders milk indigestible.

The pulp of any of the following vegetables may be used: Corn, peas, beans, pea, carrot, celery, asparagus or cauliflower. Cook the vegetables in boiling salted water and pass them through a strainer or vegetable press to take out the coarse, stringy parts. Small quantities of vegetables left from another meal may be used in this way.

The prepared vegetable soup is added to the white sauce. If the vegetable pulp is cold it may be reheated in the white sauce. It is not advisable to use this method in making tomato soup, for the acid of the tomato will curdle the milk if the mixture gets too hot. Usually about one-eighth teaspoon of soda is added to one cup of hot tomato to counteract the acid, and the tomato and white sauce are taken from the fire before mixing.

The ordinary proportions used in making white sauce for cream soup are as follows: One cup milk, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt. Method: Heat in double boiler till a scum forms; add flour mixed to a thin paste with cold milk; add salt; cook fifteen minutes in a double boiler; then add butter.

This makes a thin white sauce, but it is thick enough to bind together the different ingredients and so keep the vegetable pulp from settling. Usually two cups of white sauce are used to one cup of vegetable pulp, but these proportions may be varied some according to the amount of ingredients on hand.

HOME OF FALCONRY.

The Kirghiz Hunt Wolves and Foxes With Great Golden Eagles.

All wanderers are lovers of the chase, but for sheer love of sport and daring exploits the Kirghiz take the palm. Central Asia is the home of falconry, which was not introduced into Europe until the crusades brought back falcons with them from their eastern wanderings. But brought the ambition of the men who fly their birds at wolves and foxes instead of at quails and partridges. Not content with hunting game birds with small falcons, the Kirghiz capture and train the great golden eagles, with which they hunt such game as gazelles, foxes and even wolves.

A well mounted Kirghiz falconer, carrying on his wrist one of these magnificent birds is a fine sight. The weight of the eagle is such that the owner requires a support for his wrist, and the hunters are usually to be seen with a little wooden bracket that supports the arm against the hip. The eagles are hooded, as all falcons are, but can be used only in winter, when they are hungry and keen. In summer they are fed on marmots and live a restless life, sitting in the sun in front of the tent doors.

When gazelles or wolves are the objects of the chase the eagles are aided by long sleek greyhounds of a small breed, the dogs running in and pulling down the quarry when the eagles have sufficiently bewildered it.—Wide World Magazine.

Her First Vote.

It was the evening of election day, and Higgleby had just returned home.

"Well, my dear Jane," said he as he kissed his wife, "did you vote today?"

"Yes," replied the lady.

"Straight ticket, I suppose?" smiled her husband.

"Well, no," said Mrs. Higgleby. "After thinking it all over and reading the platforms of both parties I felt that one was about as good as the other, so I split my ticket."

"Split it?" roared Higgleby. "Why how did you do it?"

"Why, instead of putting an X over the name of one candidate," said Mrs. Higgleby, "I divided it in half and put a V over both!"—Harper's Weekly.

The Sixteenth Century Critic.

"But why, prithee," contended the first critic, "should this new playwright, Shilpur, have introduced a comic gravedigging scene into his tragedy, perdie?"

"'Tis easy of solution, by hen," answered the second critic. "Our author hath put in gravediggers for the purpose of unearthing a plot! Boy, a cup of sack!"

Wit was crude in them days.—Cleveland Leader.

THE MARTIAN INVADER

The townspeople stood in wonderment about the big, ball-shaped, metallic object which had fallen on the commons near the town during the night. As they watched, the top of the object began to slowly revolve.

"Look," cried Harry Crawford, to his pretty sweetheart, Bertha Dunbar, "there's something or someone inside!"

In a moment the top had been unscrewed sufficiently from within to enable the living being inside to topple the cover off onto the ground. Then from the interior stepped a being, fashioned in the shape of a man, but covered from head to toe with a peculiar, tight-fitting metallic appearing suit. On this being's back reposed a tank, and in his hand he carried the end of a tube attached to the tank.

The town policeman, officious as always, stepped up to the invader and grasped him somewhat roughly by the arm.

"Here, what're you doing here bo?" the policeman asked.

For answer the invader pointed the muzzle of the hose at the official. From the nozzle issued a thick, heavy, black vapor. As the policeman inhaled this he toppled over, writhing in a frenzy. Fear seized on the townspeople and they turned to run. The bloodshot eyes of the being swept the ranks of the multitude before the people ran and fastened themselves on the fair face of Bertha Dunbar. The look which the invader gave Bertha sent a cold shiver up her lover's back.

"Come," cried Harry, somewhat gruffly, "let's get away from here."

As he urged Bertha onward, the girl, as though fascinated against her will, cast many backward glances at the Martian.

Not until Harry had seen Bertha safely in her home did he breathe freely again. Then he left her hurriedly to see what the town authorities intended to do about ridding the municipality of this dire invader. He had not been gone from Bertha over 15 minutes when a fear-stricken citizen ran up to him.

"Your girl has been kidnapped by the Martian," this citizen cried.

Harry, with a few quick, scornful questions, learned that the Martian had followed him to Bertha's home and, after Harry left, had grabbed Bertha and made off with her for the ball-shaped object. Harry rushed into a nearby shop, grabbed a revolver and tore through the town for the commons. On the commons he saw a little ring of people gathered around the invader's ball and he also saw the Martian roughly throw the girl into the interior of the ball and then turn to face the people.

"Bertha!" Harry cried in frenzy as he dashed up. A weak cry from his sweetheart spurred him onward.

Harry jerked his revolver from his pocket and fired it time and again at the Martian. The shots had no effect. Then Harry sprang for the invader. The latter directed the fatal black vapor at Harry. Harry staggered backward, feeling the Martian about the legs in football style. Back and forth the two struggled. Finally, with a quick movement, Harry threw the Martian nearly over his head. Harry rushed in. Quick as lightning Harry grabbed the nozzle of the hose and directed the vapor at the invader until the latter, with a final struggle died. With a little, thankful cry of relief, Bertha weakly clambered from the ball and fainted in Harry's arms while the crowd cheered mightily.

LATEST NOVELTIES SEEN BY THE BUSY SHOPPER

Chinese shoes in different shades of silk with gaudy embroidery and soft soles of flexible leather, are now seen to wear with the kimono. They cost $2.50 a pair.

The spring parasols are seen in both light-colored velvet and in taffeta corded with gold and edged with gold fringe. They cost from $5 to $25.

Slipper trees in nickel are among the novelties of the week and are much easier to handle than the wooden ones, and are useful, not only for their light weight and size, but because they ventilate the shoes as well as keep them in shape.

Three-toned hair curlers now come to make parallel waves in the coiffure. They lend a natural wave and do not injure the hair, it is said. They cost $3.50.

Dainty Work Aprons In Various Materials

The dainty little work aprons for which one pays quite a little sum in the stores may be readily fashioned at home.

Developed in striped lawn or in more durable madras, a very pretty apron can be made in two sections or pockets suspended one above the other from the ribbon belt by means of perpendicular strips of ribbon which trim and border the sides.

The upper pocket is a half-yard length of the madras turned up six inches and stitched firmly at either end.

The lower pocket is twice as deep as the upper and is stitched securely to the bottom of the top section. Ribbon is run down the sides as a pretty finish, and as the lower pocket is larger it may be used to hold bulky articles, while the upper portion holds the needle book and dainty sewing materials.

Almond Cheese Pats

Molten one cream cheese with two tablespoons of cream, add one cup of finely minced almonds, salt and paprika and form into small pats with the mold that is used for making butter pats. This was a recent innovation in serving cheese.

Two delicious desserts suggest themselves as a finish for the February feast—be it luncheon, dinner or supper.

SAVINGS OF CHILDREN

Mildred was a self-possessed little girl of four. One night a household of company was present, and all sat down to eat supper. Mildred was given one bone from a chicken to eat the meat off. Soon she was finished and the bone was licked clean.

"Why, Mildred," exclaimed some one, "you have the wishbone."

This was enough. In a second she had hold of one end and her informant of the other. The ceremony completed, Mildred was asked what she had wished for.

"I wished there was more meat on that bone," she said.

Andrew's grandmother had been telling him Bible stories, his favorite being that of Daniel in the lion's den. At the age of four he was taken to a circus for the first time. When the lion tamer put his head into the lion's mouth Andrew's excitement knew no bounds. Jumping up and down he gleefully screamed: "Gee, that knocks the spots off Daniel!"

COMPACT COLLAR BOX IN SOFT LEATHER

In these days when the plain stiff linen collars are no novelty in women's neckwear we see a collar box much like that the man of the house uses on his travels.

It is not so bulky, however, as the usual article, which takes up a great deal of space in the packing. It comes in all varieties of leather, is as high as the collar, has one round end just large enough for the back of the collar to fit in without breaking and then narrows down toward the other end, which is also rounded, but narrower.

A strap binds it just below the wide end, and when drawn tight holds the collars in place and makes a neat, compact collar box.

However, a better idea might be obtained by seeing it, as a description of such a receptacle is generally unsatisfactory.

Making Good Soup an Art

Housekeepers of short experience think of all the menu the soup is the easiest-made. But in the making of soups, as in the other dishes, there is a right way which will turn out a savory and delicious soup and the slipshod way which will make but a poor apology for the best sort.

Soups consist chiefly of the broth of boiled meat called "stock," and in order to have the best stock it is necessary that the meat be fresh and sweet.

This meat should not be boiled quickly, as this will seal the juices rather than extract them. A long and gentle simmering is the most approved method of extracting the juices.

It is not needful that the most expensive meat be bought. A shank or other meat bones, the carcass of a roast turkey or chicken or the trimmings from roasts and steaks are all excellent to prepare stock from.

Put these in the pot and cover with cold water, add a handful of salt and boil gently for several hours. Vegetables should not be added until the stock is fully prepared, as long cooking will cause them to lose their flavor.

Take off the scum which rises from time to time and add more water as the stock boils away. When ready to make the soup the stock may be diluted if it be too strong and if there be any left it may be set aside in a stone or earthen jar and will keep several days in a cool place.

Touch of Color Lent In Spring Costume

It is generally conceded that black and white combinations will appear in some of the smartest frocks and suits for the early spring but as these are likely to look rather chilly a touch of color is sometimes introduced.

A new suit with the fashionable short cut had a touch of color lent in the buttons which were of black pearl with bright red centers.
